

No. 162 · 12 January 2010

I. Scholarships and Fellowships

- Undergrad: University of Evansville EducationUSA Scholarship – up to $14,000 / academic year
- Harry Ransom Center at the Univ. of Texas at Austin / Ph.D. Fellowships up to $3,000 / month
- SSRC Dissertation Proposal Development Fellowship Program – up to $5,000 for summer research

I. Scholarships and Fellowships

UNIVERSITY OF EVANSVILLE EDUCATIONUSA SCHOLARSHIP – UP TO $14,000 / ACADEMIC YEAR

The University of Evansville, in partnership with EducationUSA, is again offering an OSEAS Scholarship of $14,000 per academic year to undergraduate students nominated by EducationUSA advisors worldwide (one per center).

This scholarship is guaranteed with 2 conditions: students are academically admissible to the University of Evansville and they submit the nomination form from the EducationUSA advisor. Students lacking English proficiency may begin in the University's Intensive English Center. The University of Evansville is proud to have been a nominee for the Best U.S. Institutional Partner award at the 25th anniversary of USBT celebration at the NAFSA conference in Washington D.C., May 2009.

UE again ranks highly with U.S. News and World Report as top 10 "overall", 2nd in the "best value" category and 6th in this year's newest category of "universities with a commitment to teaching". In addition, the University's civil engineering program is ranked #1 in the U.S. among small universities by the American Society of Civil Engineers. All engineering programs hold ABET accreditation and the School of Business, AACSB international accreditation.

Email Bev Fowler at bf28@evansville.edu for more information.

www.evansville.edu/admission/international.cfm

HARRY RANSOM CENTER AT THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS AT AUSTIN OFFERS PH.D. FELLOWSHIPS IN THE HUMANITIES – UP TO $3000 PER MONTH

APPLICATION DEADLINE: FEBRUARY 1, 2010

The Harry Ransom Center, an internationally renowned humanities research library and museum, announces its 2010-2011 Research Fellowship program.

The Ransom Center annually awards 50 fellowships to support scholarly research projects in all areas of the humanities, including literature, photography, film, art, the performing arts, music, and cultural history. Applicants must demonstrate the necessity of substantial on-site use of the Center's collections.

AVAILABLE FELLOWSHIPS INCLUDE

ONE TO THREE MONTH FELLOWSHIPS • 3,000 PER MONTH

For research in the Center's collections. A limited number of two or three month fellowships are available for projects requiring extensive work with the Ransom Center's collections.

TRAVEL STIPENDS • $1,200-$1,700

Travel stipends may be awarded to scholars with research projects that require less than one month's research at the Ransom Center. Awards of $1,200 are available for domestic U.S. travel; $1,700 for foreign travel. There is not a specific required length of residency for travel stipends. Travel stipends may not be combined with other Ransom Center fellowships and are not available to graduate students.

DISSERTATION FELLOWSHIPS • $1,500

Six fellowships jointly sponsored by the Ransom Center and The University of Texas at Austin Office of Graduate Studies are designated for graduate students who are working on doctoral dissertations. Dissertation fellowship residencies must be taken up during the period from September 1, 2010 through August 31, 2011. There is not a specific required length of residency for dissertation fellowships.

For further information on application procedures, visit:

<http://studentscornerspot.blogspot.com/2010/01/cfa-university-of-evansville.html>

SSRC DISSERTATION PROPOSAL DEVELOPMENT FELLOWSHIP (DPDF) PROGRAM - UP TO $5000

APPLICATION DEADLINE: JANUARY 29, 2010

The Dissertation Proposal Development Fellowship (DPDF) is organized to help early-stage graduate students in the humanities and social sciences formulate effective doctoral dissertation proposals.

Each year, the program offers training within different interdisciplinary fields of study under the leadership of pairs of tenured senior faculty, who define the fields and serve as research directors for groups of 12 graduate students. The students participate in two workshops: one in the spring, to prepare students to undertake summer research that will inform the design of their dissertation research; the other in the fall, to help students apply their summer research experiences to writing dissertation and funding proposals. Students may apply for up to $5,000 to cover summer research costs. Working together, research directors and graduate students design research that will help to shape evolving fields in the humanities and social science.

The DPDF program is open to doctoral students in social science or humanities disciplines who have completed their major course requirements and are beginning to design research proposals. Students who have completed their comprehensive, general, or qualifying exams are eligible to apply as long as their dissertation proposals will be formally approved by their department after the fall DPDF workshop. Typically such students will be second and third year graduate students, but first and fourth year student may, under exceptional circumstances, be eligible.

Applicants must be enrolled full-time in a Ph.D. program within an accredited university in the United States, unless indicated otherwise for a particular field. In the current application cycle French students and foreign students enrolled in a French institution are also invited to apply to participate in the field of "Multiculturalism, Immigration, and Identity in Western Europe and the United States."

For further information on application procedures, visit: <http://www.ssrc.org/fellowships/dpdf-fellowship/>, or contact

Emily Burns
Senior Program Assistant,
Dissertation Proposal Development Fellowship
E-mail: burns@ssrc.org
Phone: (718) 517-3646